

JUDr. Rebecca Lilla Hassanová, PhD. was born in Bratislava, Slovakia. After finishing her studies at the faculty of law at Comenius University, she continued her doctoral studies in the international law programme at the Pan-European University in Bratislava. Since then, her fields of interests became International Humanitarian Law, International Criminal Law and International Human Rights Law. Currently, she is an Assistant Professor at the Pan-European University and a researcher at the Budapest based Central European Academy. She spends her free time with family and her dog Kara.

The monograph ascertains the balance between the principles of military necessity and humanity. This balance can be considered as the essence of International Humanitarian Law. The study provides a structured overview of rights and obligation issues applied during an armed conflict, focusing mainly on theoretical shortcomings in the field and their impact. These principles are able to address contemporary development issues and many times interact even more properly than the existing treaty framework.
